The recovery hub wants to make sure that services that help people with mental health problems and their families work together. By working together we mean that they share information, that they keep you at the centre of any decisions and that their services are joined up. How well do the services that support you work together just now? Tick one box.
The services that support me always work very well together .
The services that support me usually work well together .
The services that support me sometimes work well together but at other times do not .
